

Hypnagogic Art

Sculpture: on a temporary wooden table (made of, say, 3/4" plywood and covered with a thin material whose color I'm not sure of) lie three objects: an elegant, somewhat effeminate, slimfingered, dark-green man's glove with fragments of a gold chain attached at approximately the location of the first joint of each finger a black-leather object which might be either the handle of a whip or the scabbard of a short sword; and a cake on which the creamy white icing has been layered with loving sweeps of a large spatula. A piece of white, stiff, decorative rope (not a candle) has been stuck in the top of the cake at one point as shown.